

1st Lieutenant Harold Robinson Bruno Jr.

Year of Commission: 1950

BA in Journalism

Harold Bruno served in the Korean War as an Army intelligence officer. Bruno then earned a Fulbright scholarship to study in India after the war. He rose to become Newsweek's Chicago Bureau Chief And later the Magazine's Political Editor in Washington D.C. in 1978. Bruno went to work for ABC News to oversee election and political coverage for the network. He remained the Political Director at ABC News until he retired in 1999. Once retired he served as the Chairman of the National Fallen Firefighters Foundation from 1999 to 2008 and remained Chairman Emeritus after retiring from the post. Bruno was inducted into the Society of Professional Journalists Hall of Fame in 2008.

Year Inducted: 2013